Non-Intervention Meeting Called With Russians Ready to Take Step

FOREIGNERS IN DANGER

Latin American Countries Threaten Drastic Act

LONDON, Oct. 22. — (UP)—The Spanish civil war became today the centre of world diplomatic anxiety. As the nationalists drove on to Madrid, new complications arose which made Spain a source of grave potential danger to Europe.

The Fascist nationalists were 45 minutes by motor car from Madrid and its left front government. Civilians were turned out into the suburbs of Madrid, with no uniforms and no arms, to drill for a fight that leaders said would extend into the city streets if the nationalists reached the city.

In London, at the urgent insistence of Soviet Russia, Lord Plymouth, British chairman of the international committee of non-intervention in the civil war, called a meeting for tomorrow afternoon.

At this meeting Russia was expected to denounce the agreement on the ground that Portugal, Germany and Italy had violated it by aiding the nationalists.

Russia May Act

Russia was expected then to resume its liberty of action—action which everyone believed would mean a desperate effort to get arms and munitions to the loyalists.

Any Russian aid to the Madrid government was expected to bring recognition of the insurgent nation.

A Bead a Day Kept Death Away

A BEAD a day has kept death away from 20-month-old Bobby Fowler of Washington, D. C. Bobby's esophagus was severely burned last April when he drank some lye and as a result his throat gradually closed. An operation was performed to permit a tiny opening. Small beads, one a day, attached to a string, were given Bobby to swallow, thus making the opening larger each day. The string runs from Bobby's mouth through his throat and esophagus and stomach and out a rubber tube inserted in the wall of the abdomen. Bobby now talks freely.

The crowd packed every inch of Bushnell Park facing the golden-domed state capitol and acclaimed him when he arrived to deliver a speech.

"You are more than friends in Connecticut, for you are my neighbors. No one could fail to be inspired by this sight before me, tens of thousands of men, women and children."

"I am here in a two-fold capacity to talk to your governor, your state officials and your senators to talk about floods and I am also here, I am told, as a candidate for high public office."

Mr. Roosevelt then stressed the need of cooperation between the states themselves and the federal government in meeting the problems of the day.

DAY'S SCHEDULE IS DISRUPTED BY BAD WEATHER

Event To Be Seen At 3 P. M. Friday Immediately After Baby Show

BIG THROG WEDNESDAY

Comic and Mardi Gras on Thursday at 8 P. M.

Murky skies, intermittent rain and a slump in temperature failed to discourage Pumpkin Show visitors Thursday.

They put on their heavier clothing, raincoats and came to town by the hundreds at noon to enjoy exhibits, and the afternoon and evening activities.

Due to the weather conditions the Industrial parade, scheduled for 2 p. m. Thursday was called off by officials. If weather permits the parade will be held at 3 p. m. Friday, one hour after the Baby parade.

No change had been announced at noon on the Mardi Gras, Comic and Character parade scheduled for 8 p. m. Thursday. Officials hoped skies would clear before evening.

Temperature to Fall

The drop in temperature was expected to halt the drizzling rain. Continued cool weather was forecast for the balance of the week by the Columbus weather bureau. The rainfall at 7 a. m. Thursday amounted to only .04 of an inch, and during the morning only a trace was recorded. The temperature dropped from 60 to 52 degrees between 7 a. m. and noon.

The largest crowd in the history of the celebration attended the opening night of the show. The entire downtown district was jammed for the Miss Pumpkin Show pageant, the first parade of the festival. The crowd remained until after the fireworks celebration at 11:45 p. m. which closed the evening's activities.

Horses to Show, Too

In addition to the Mardi Gras, Comic and Character parade, Thursday night, other activities included the Pony and Horse Show at 8:15 p. m. in the ball park on W. Mound street. If weather permits the fireworks display will be fired at 11:15 p. m.

Friday's schedule includes: 12:30 p. m., draft horse show and judging at the ball park; 2 p. m., Baby parade; 3 p. m., Industrial parade; 3:15 p. m., foot races and relays for boys on E. Mound street; and 8 p. m., Horse show. If the weather causes a postponement of the fireworks display Wednesday night it will be fired Thursday night.

RIFE FILES SUIT ASKING TO END LAND CONTRACT

Marcus J. Rife, Ashville, R.F.D., filed suit in common pleas court Wednesday against Charles W. and Bertha M. Fortner, of Ashville, asking cancellation of a contract on a real estate sale, possession of the property and a judgment for $990.

The petition says Dec. 12, 1934, the plaintiff sold real estate in Ashville to the defendants under a contract. It says the defendants were to pay $45 a month until a certain sum had been paid, they were to receive a deed, and a mortgage was to be given for the balance. The plaintiff alleges that no payments have been made.

The petition says the contract has been lost or destroyed.

HOUSE STUDIES CAMPAIGN FUND OF DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—(UP) —The senate campaign expenditures committee today called on the Democratic National committee to explain the nature of funds received from advertisers for advertising or printing in the Democratic national convention program.

The committee said the inquiry was intended to determine whether money paid for advertising in the bulky program represented true advertising value or whether it represented in part political contributions.

Republican campaign spokesmen have charged that pressure was placed on advertisers to purchase space in the Democratic program. They contended the advertising represented forced political contributions.

DAY'S SCHEDULE IS DISRUPTED BY BAD WEATHER

Event To Be Seen At 3 P. M. Friday Immediately After Baby Show

BIG THROG WEDNESDAY

Comic and Mardi Gras on Thursday at 8 P. M.

Murky skies, intermittent rain and a slump in temperature failed to discourage Pumpkin Show visitors Thursday.

They put on their heavier clothing, raincoats and came to town by the hundreds at noon to enjoy exhibits, and the afternoon and evening activities.

Due to the weather conditions the Industrial parade, scheduled for 2 p. m. Thursday was called off by officials. If weather permits the parade will be held at 3 p. m. Friday, one hour after the Baby parade.

No change had been announced at noon on the Mardi Gras, Comic and Character parade scheduled for 8 p. m. Thursday. Officials hoped skies would clear before evening.

Temperature to Fall

The drop in temperature was expected to halt the drizzling rain. Continued cool weather was forecast for the balance of the week by the Columbus weather bureau. The rainfall at 7 a. m. Thursday amounted to only .04 of an inch, and during the morning only a trace was recorded. The temperature dropped from 60 to 52 degrees between 7 a. m. and noon.

The largest crowd in the history of the celebration attended the opening night of the show. The entire downtown district was jammed for the Miss Pumpkin Show pageant, the first parade of the festival. The crowd remained until after the fireworks celebration at 11:45 p. m. which closed the evening's activities.

Horses to Show, Too

In addition to the Mardi Gras, Comic and Character parade, Thursday night, other activities included the Pony and Horse Show at 8:15 p. m. in the ball park on W. Mound street. If weather permits the fireworks display will be fired at 11:15 p. m.

Friday's schedule includes: 12:30 p. m., draft horse show and judging at the ball park; 2 p. m., Baby parade; 3 p. m., Industrial parade; 3:15 p. m., foot races and relays for boys on E. Mound street; and 8 p. m., Horse show. If the weather causes a postponement of the fireworks display Wednesday night it will be fired Thursday night.

RIFE FILES SUIT ASKING TO END LAND CONTRACT

Marcus J. Rife, Ashville, R.F.D., filed suit in common pleas court Wednesday against Charles W. and Bertha M. Fortner, of Ashville, asking cancellation of a contract on a real estate sale, possession of the property and a judgment for $900.

The petition says Dec. 12, 1934, the plaintiff sold real estate in Ashville to the defendants under a contract. It says the defendants were to pay $45 a month until a certain sum had been paid, they were to receive a deed, and a mortgage was to be given for the balance. The plaintiff alleges that no payments have been made. The petition says the contract has been lost or destroyed.

VALLEE AIMING AT FINEST SHOW FOR ANNIVERSARY

Noel Coward, Gypsy Lee Rose and English Actress on His Program

Rudy Vallee is trying to attain the showman's ideal of a perfect variety program for his seventh anniversary broadcast tonight.

Acts on the show include Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence; Tom Howard and George Shelton; and just recently booked, Gypsy Rose Lee, famous burlesque and musical comedy entertainer; a melodrama called "The Clock Strikes," and an instrumentalist. Perfect balance is the ideal at which this edition of the Variety Hour aims. The broadcast over the NBC red network at 8 p. m. offers Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence in light comedy of the English type; Howard and Shelton in more robust frivolity; Gypsy Rose Lee as a featured singer in a number written by Noel Coward and called "Don't Put Your Daughter on the Stage, Mrs. Worthington;" the instrumental number; and the melodrama which is being broadcast for the first time.

The melodrama, "The Clock Strikes," was written by Agnes Ridgeway. During the history of the Vallee Hour many writers have written their first radio work for this program and many new ones have been discovered. Consequently for the "perfect" variety show it was decided to make an original radio drama part of the bill.

Headliners this date are Adolphe Menjou, Anne Shirley, Josephine Antoine and Noel Coward. The Staff Band of the Salvation Army begins a CBS series at 5 p. m. Keeping this novel program up to standard, Music Is My Hobby presents the chorus from Bergen County and Roger Vreeland, music editor of the Bergen Evening Record, who will discuss the cultural influence this chorus has exercised in its vicinity. Adolphe Menjou, Anne Shirley and Josephine Antoine help make Music Hall one of tonight's NBC high spots at 10 p. m.

Mormon Appeal Changed

SALT LAKE CITY (UP)—Science has supplanted the old-fashioned street meetings, backbone of the Latter Day Saint (Mormon) church missionary system. Extensive radio broadcasts and illustrated tracts printed in color are now widely used, church officials reported.

Colorado Mines Safer

DENVER, (UP)—Although coal mining is listed as one of the most hazardous occupations it is safer today than at any time in the state's history says Thomas Allen state coal mine inspector. Allen announced a decrease in "the working death rate" in Colorado mines of 20 per cent from last year.

She's a Restless Sleeper

LITTLE, brown-eyed Edna Jewett, 2, of Somerville, Mass., slept so soundly and so restlessly that her head became wedged between the slats of a bedroom settee. It took firemen fifteen minutes of careful cutting and chiseling to free the little girl, who was none the worse for the mishap.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

A strip of land thirty miles long and ten miles wide in which Death, in a painful and horrible form, stalked unseen, forms the grim locale of the colorful and romantic story, which "The White Legion," Grand National's vivid pictures of the Panama Canal's beginnings, unfolds, upon the screen a the Cliftona theatre for the last times today.

"The White Legion," produced by Bennie F. Zeidman and written and directed by Karl Brown, is a fictional but historically accurate account of the heroism of the scientists and medical men and women, who freely offered their lives and health in the fight against the dreaded "yellow jack" in the fever infested swamps of Panama at the turn of the century. Only their unselfish devotion in the cause of humanity made it possible for the engineers and laborers to do their work and build the "big ditch" which today links the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and shortens by many thousands of miles the shipping routes of the two hemispheres.

AT THE GRAND

The United States is responsible in naming the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Robert Kent made this astonishing discovery while preparing for his starring role in Zane Grey's "King of the Royal Mounted," Twentieth Century-Fox release at the Grand theatre currently.

The Canadian force was first organized in 1873 and was called "Mounted Riflemen." The United States, sensitive about such an organization on its northern frontier, protested the mobilization and Canada obliging explained its true purpose and then changed the name to "Mounted Police."

AT THE CIRCLE

"Pinto Rustlers," starring Tom Tyler, with Catherine Catter and an unusual cast of veteran players, now playing at the Circle theatre. According to advance descriptions, this picture was devoted completely to the old west, when horse herds roamed the range and rustlers rode in their wake. Bernard B. Ray was the producer for Reliable Pictures and Henri Samuels directed.

nationalist government by Italy, Germany and Portugal.

The natural implication would be that the three government then would aid the nationalists—a race between communist Russia and Nazi-Fascist Germany, Italy and Portugal.

Spain became more and more clearly a political battleground between the totalitarian idea of dictatorship and the contrasting forms of government that run from democracies to the communism of Russia.

In Paris, France was preparing to aid in a mass evacuation of nationalist refugees sheltered in the embassies of Latin American nations.

Demands Fill Air

Argentina demanded that the Madrid government reply today to its request for safe evacuation to France of refugees in the Spanish embassy and the Uruguayan legation. The Argentine ambassador at Paris made the demand to the Spanish ambassador. At the time a note was on its way direct from Buenos Aires to Madrid in which Argentina, acting for the Latin American republics, warned clearly, if in polite terms, that slaughter of the refugees sheltered in embassies and legations—some 2,000 people in all—might mean that Latin American nations might join in breaking off diplomatic relations.

British warships patrolled the Mediterranean coast of Spain waiting for news that an agreement had been reached for an exchange of hostages between the nationalists and the loyalists. There are 6,000 nationalist hostages in Madrid prison and Great Britain fears all might die if the nationalists reached the city gates.

The military situation at Madrid foreshadowed an early climax to the long, carefully planned campaign by which the nationalists have reached almost within the environs of greater Madrid. Loyalist militiamen essayed small counter offensives. But the nationalists, after a drive yesterday which put them in Navalcarnero, only 15 miles from the Madrid suburbs, seemed merely waiting for orders to advance once more.

Judge Roy Gilken of Jackson county, candidate for the appeals court bench, was a Circleville visitor Thursday.

BOSTON (UP)—Patrolman Patrick R. McGuckian, Officer 13 of the Boston police force, says 13 has always been an omen of good luck to him. He has been on the force 31 years, which figure if reversed is 13. He spent many years of police service at Station 13.

AVIATOR HERDS WILD BRONCHOS

MARYSVILLE, Cal. (UP)—The first experiments in using planes instead of cowboys in rounding up wild horses have been made in Nevada.

The success would indicate that the cowboy, at least for this phase of "wild West" work, soon may become a thing of the past unless he learns to pilot a plane as skillfully as he does his horse. The first experiment at rounding up wild horses by plane was made with Louis Vremak of the local aviation service at the controls.

By swooping down low over bunches of horses grazing on ranges so extensive that ordinarily a score of cowboys would have been necessary to round them up Vremak was able gradually to stampede them. Once the entire mass was moving it was then easy to run them into a natural corral in a Nevada canyon, where cowboys afoot were waiting to brush them behind gates and close them in corrals.

The superiority of aviation for this purpose over the old-time roundup by cowboys is declared to lie in several facts. In the first place, only a single flier is necessary to handle a job that would require a dozen or more cowboys.

In the second place, the airplane has a stamina which is not possessed by the pony of the plains which in turn is not sufficient to meet the stamina of wild horses. The latter often break into terrific stampedes that carry a herd for 20 miles. The cowboy's horse is unable to match this endurance. The plane on the other hand is able to outstep the swiftest wild horses and guide a stampede into the desired direction.

While aviation is used for dusting crops and for sowing seeds over vast expanses of land, still one more use is to be made of it, and for which planes of the necessary size are being constructed in Southern California. This is for fertilization purposes. A plane is being built with a capacity for carrying 2,000 tons of fertilizer. It will be able to do in an hour or two the work of fertilizing lands which would require days by the use of horses and wagons or even tractors.

DAKOTA WIDENS EROSION WORK

FARGO, N. D. (UP)—Plans to acquaint farmers of wind-swept, drought-harassed North Dakota with soil erosion control methods, are being furthered in the north central part of the state, according to H. H. Bennett, chief of the Soil Conservation Service.

A new soil conservation demonstration area of 25,000 acres in Bottineau County has been established. This area is representative of much of the farming land in North Dakota. The principal crop is spring wheat, and in 1935, 30 per cent of the total acreage was devoted to wheat production.

Wind-erosion Great Soil erosion in Bottineau County, as throughout North Dakota, especially in the northern sector, is serious, but has been gradual. Much of the land has been in almost continuous cultivation since 1905 and wind erosion has damaged many fields by blowing away dry, pulverized top soil.

In places, fence lines have been covered to as high as 42 inches by this drifting soil. Drouth has accentuated erosion conditions in recent years, but the practice of leaving the land unprotected by vegetation during the summer has been a contributing factor to wind erosion.

The Soil Conservation Service will demonstrate soil and water conservation methods in co-operation with farmers in the Bottineau area, Bennett announced.

Mutual Agreement Reached
To establish the demonstration, the service will agree to provide necessary technical planning and assistance in setting up erosion control programs for farms, he said.

In return, the farmer must agree to follow the recommended practices for a five-year period. He will supply as much labor and material as possible, and the service will furnish supplemental labor and equipment when necessary.

The Bottineau County demonstration project is the second to be established in North Dakota, and brings the total of service demonstration areas to 156 in 43 states.

Friday and Saturday have been designated as tag days for the W. P. A. recreational group. Girl Scouts will be in charge of tag sales under the chairmanship of Mrs. Howard Moore.

A. A. A. TO SEND TO U. S. FA

WASHINGTON Oct. 22.—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration was ready today to start the flow benefit payments to farmers who have cooperated in government efforts to reduce crop surpluses and rebuild the fertility of the nation's soil.

The first block of benefit checks under the $470,000,000 soil conservation act of 1936 will be sent to farmers of 15 states within a few days. Applications of the individual farmers have been approved, and the checks will be placed in the mail as soon as they clear the general accounting office. Some of the payments will be made before the end of the week, it was said.

NATIONS WATCH AS REBEL ARMY NEARS MADRID

Non-Intervention Meeting
Called With Russians
Ready to Take Step

tionalist government by Italy, Germany and Portugal.
The natural implication would be that the three government then would aid the nationalists—a race between communist Russia and Nazi-Fascist Germany, Italy and Portugal.
Spain became more and more clearly a political battleground between the totalitarian idea of dictatorship and the contrasting forms of government that run from democracies to the communism of Russia.
In Paris, France was preparing to aid in a mass evacuation of nationalist refugees sheltered in the embassies of Latin American nations.

Demands Fill Air
Argentina demanded that the Madrid government reply today to its request for safe evacuation to France of refugees in the Spanish embassy and the Uruguayan legation. The Argentine ambassador at Paris made the demand to the Spanish ambassador. At the time a note was on its way direct from Buenos Aires to Madrid in which Argentina, acting for the Latin American republics, warned clearly, if in polite terms, that slaughter of the refugees sheltered in embassies and legations—some 2,000 people in all—might mean that Latin American nations might join in breaking off diplomatic relations.
British warships patrolled the Mediterranean coast of Spain waiting for news that an agreement had been reached for an exchange of hostages between the nationalists and the loyalists. There are 6,000 nationalist hostages in Madrid prison and Great Britain fears all might die if the nationalists reached the city gates.
The military situation at Madrid foreshadowed an early climax to the long, carefully planned campaign by which the nationalists have reached almost within the environs of greater Madrid.
Loyalist militiamen essayed small counter offensives. But the nationalists, after a drive yesterday which put them in Navalcarnera, only 15 miles from the Madrid suburbs, seemed merely waiting for orders to advance once more.

Judge Roy Gillen of Jackson county, candidate for the appeals court bench, was a Circleville visitor Thursday.

PRESIDENT BIDS FOR BACKING IN EASTERN AREA

F.D.R. Now in Connecticut
After Stirring Talk in Worcester

AUDITORIUM CROWDED Attack on Leadership of Republicans Continued

ABOARD ROOSEVELT CAM-PAIGN TRAIN, Oct. 22.—(UP)— President Roosevelt made his personal bid for the vote of Connecticut today, swinging his campaign south from Massachusetts after a series of tumultuous receptions crowned by a vigorous defense of his tax policies.

He believed Massachusetts was "in the bag" following great crowds and much cheering that easily outstripped anything experienced in his entire re-election drive to date.

He ended the wild day with a nationwide radio speech in Worcester last night that sounded the keynote of his fiscal program.

He declared himself in favor of "democracy in taxation," saying that his principles embraced the maxim that "taxes shall be levied according to ability to pay." He blasted away at the Republican leadership and expressed confidence that his actions would be vindicated at the polls.

Irony in Tax Talk

Mr. Roosevelt chided again those who feel the tax burden of the United States is too high, and expressed, in mild irony, the belief that those who talk of escaping it by moving to foreign countries, would soon return to America and its "good old taxes."

In line with his policy of selling to the nation the general, economic gains he attributes to his New Deal program of Federal action, the President said that the situation was so improved that not only would the budget be balanced soon but that there would be a prediction in the national debt and that no new increased levies were contemplated.

He warned against propaganda and remarked that "once more this year we must choose between democracy in taxation and special privilege in taxation."

"Are you willing," he asked, "to turn the control of the nation's taxes back to special privilege?
I know the American answer to that question. Your pay envelope may be loaded with suggestions of fear and your dividend letter may be filled with propaganda. But the American people will be neither bluffed nor bludgeoned.

"The seeds of fear cannot bear fruit in the polling booth."
Massachusetts, hitherto regarded as a doubtful state, was located on by Mr. Roosevelt's advisers as the result of yesterday's wild receptions, as now leaning toward the administration ticket.

NON - POISONOUS
FUEL GAS USED BY CALIFORNIA

LOS ANGELES (UP) — Exhaustive tests made by scientists at the University of Southern California reveal that natural gas used by companies of California is non-poisonous and harmless.

For the past six months, secret tests have been made by the scientists on themselves, also rats and monkeys. Under the direction of Dr. D. R. Drury, professor of medicine, subjects remained in a virtually air-tight chamber filled with natural gas for two hours without ill effects.

They played cards, read and lounged about as in their own living rooms, doing "most everything but smoking.

"The only danger from this type of gas," Dr. Drury explained, "results when in concentrations difficult to obtain, a person is threatened with suffocation through lack of air. The accumulation of carbon monoxide in a closed room caused by unvented heaters or faulty furnaces has been the cause of danger."

More severe tests were made with monkeys and rats. Except for a slight loss in weight, the latter were found to be normal after a 31-day test in atmosphere with 30 per cent concentration of natural gas. Rats kept in the same chamber for 31 days mated and gave birth to normal offspring. All but one gained weight during the test.

BUSHMEN FOUND TO BE WITHOUT
IDEA OF MONEY

JOHANNESBURG (UP) —

When a number of pennies were showered at the feet of a few bushmen who were visiting Johannesburg by a good natured crowd the bushmen surprised everyone by spurning the coins instead of pouncing on them.

The explanation is that the bushmen, whose homes are in the inner recesses of the vast Kalahari Desert, the Saraha of South Africa, were making their first contact with civilization and did not understand the significance of the coins.

They were invited to Johannesburg by members of the recent expedition of the University of Witwaters. Whole families of this fast-disappearing race have been transported to Johannesburg in-

PLATE GLASS SHATTERED
AT PICKENS RESTAURANT

A large plate glass window and a door glass in the Pickens restaurant, S. Court street, were broken Wednesday night in a skirmish that occurred in the front end of the establishment.

Robert Pickens said the door glass was broken when it was shoved back against a transom lift and one of the men in the altercation was shoved against the large window. No one was injured. Pickens said the glass was insured.

EIGHT CASES ON MAYOR'S DOCKET

Eight cases were on the police court docket Thursday morning.
Three men were arrested for fighting.

Lundy Ferguson, Lancaster pike, forfeited a $5 bond posted to appear at 9 a. m. in police court.
Jack Ronstedt, 32, of Route 3, Chillicothe, and Charles Owens, 22, each to report at 7 p. m. Thursday, Rennie Sowers, 25, of Jackson township, arrested for being drunk and disorderly, was released.

Four persons were held Thursday for investigation. Those held were Oren Curry, 20, of Belpre, O.; Robert Jenkins, 22, of Westville, Ill.; Violet Travis, 16, and Leona Swartz, 22, both of Lancaster. The girls were held in the county jail.

Pumpkin Seeds Gathered About Town

"King Pumpkin" is reigning in the obliterated circle at Court and Main street in the form of a gigantic artificial pumpkin. It is the possession of Mayor W. J.
Graham. The big pumpkin was moved to permit big floats to get around it.

The biggest pumpkin on display in front of Press Hosler's weighs 75 1/2 pounds, while the largest squash is 67 1/4 pounds.

Two prescriptions, issued more than 30 years ago by Drs. A.
W. Holman and D. V. Courtright, are exhibited in the Hamilton and Ryan store window.

Articles made in the WPA sewing center are being shown in the Darst building, W. Main street.

All the floats in the beauty parade, except that of Griffith and Martin, were constructed by Hildeburn Martin. The Griffith and Martin entry was made by the firm operators and Homer Bausum, Walnut township florist.

A bear trap more than 200 years old and the property of Jesse Adell is shown in the Hunter
Hardware Co. window.

Keen little dogs are being shown in two uptown windows.

A collection of weapons taken from criminals, pictures and moulage articles are on display at the State Highway Patrol booth in front of the city building. Visitors may also see one of the patrol's broadcasting stations in operation.

Harry Lane, chairman of the poultry department, reported entries surpassed previous years. A total of 260 had been filed at that time and more were arriving.
Judging in this department will not start until Friday morning.

An exhibit of shells has been loaned and arranged in the Public library by Dr. and Mrs. B. R.

Bales. The display is in the front hall.

Lyman Bell, N. Court street, has on display in the library a vertebra and rib from a 63-ton whale.
They were obtained at Provincetown, Cape Cod, Mass.

The fine arts department was being judged Thursday and the fancy work and flowers on Friday. Mrs. Brunelle Downing, city, and Karl Bolander, Columbus, night.

will judge the art department.
Fancy work will be judged by Mrs. A. J. Best, Pittsburgh; Mrs.
E. L. Elkins, of Oswego, N. Y.,
and Mrs. O. Harmon of Liberty Center. O. Pearl Jenkins or Lancaster will judge the flowers.

Due to the vast amount of fancy work listed for display the chairman could not open the exhibit to the public Wednesday night.

Members of Organization to be Present Daily

The local chapter of the National Guildcrafters, on the invitation of Mayor W. J. Graham, and members of the Pumpkin Show committee, are featuring a special exhibit of handicrafts in Memorial Hall during Pumpkin Show week.

The exhibit has been assembled by the department of education of the home office of the National Guildcrafters, Columbus. It consists of craft work from various parts of the United States, as well as abroad. There is on display specimens of wood carving, leather work, embroidery, tie-dyeing, batik, rug hooking, stenciling, metal craft, crayon craft, pottery, paper decoration, weaving and many other fascinating examples of craft work.

The exhibit was collected and arranged by Ella L. Langenberg, author on art subjects and handicraft authority, and Karl S. Bolander, lecturer and art director of the Guildcrafters, who were assisted by Mrs. James Moffitt, chairman of the Fine Arts Exhibit of the Pumpkin Show and Brunelle Downing, director of art education in the Cincinnati public schools. Mrs. Downing was formerly a student of Miss Langenberg in the Chicago School of Industrial Art.

Many of the local Guildcrafters are competing for prizes in the exhibit of fine art and craft work which has been arranged on the stage by Mrs. Moffitt's committee. The local Guildcrafters have been working on the home study course under the direction of Iola Wentworth during the last winter. This exhibit illustrates what beautiful work can be done in a short time under proper direction.

Mrs. Wilma Pusecker, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Bolander or Mr. Minshall from National Guildcraft headquarters in Columbus with various members and sponsors will be in charge of the exhibit each day and will gladly answer questions and give information.

KENNEDY URGES RE-ELECTION OF THE PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, banker and former Securities Exchange Commission chairman, predicted the "certain triumph of President Roosevelt" in a coast-to-coast radio speech last night.

He urged "the average business man" not to let "all business get jockeyed into a position of antagonism to the rest of the nation because a few stuffed shirts have lost their silk hats."

"It is desperately important," he said, "for the future of this nation, that we come out of this election a united people. . . the business man should not want to swap horses in the middle of the stream."

"He knows," Kennedy added, "that if Roosevelt is re-elected he will be president, but if Landon is elected, nobody knows who will be president."

"For four years Hoover administration risked our lives and our institutions by trying to bluff the situation out. . . it didn't get results. The Roosevelt administration was too wise to bluff. It spent eight billions—enough to be sure—and it got results—the machine started up again. . . England adopted such a policy long before. . . and spent less than we did because

FRESH COAT OF PAINT SIGNIFIES AGAIN WHITE HOUSE BIRTHDAY

Each year the White House is given a new coat of paint.

WASHINGTON.—America's most famous mansion marked its birthday a few days ago with a one hundred and forty-fourth fresh coat of gleaming white paint. Squads of painters clambered up and around high green scaffolding as they plied their brushes on the home of presidents—the White House.

It will be election day before the job is done. Each year the White House confronts Washington and its throngs of visitors with a new face.

Not Always White
The White House was not always white. John Adams, the second president, and his wife, who were the first occupants, found their new home was of buff sandstone.

It was an unprepossessing place then. Its now green lawns were piled with rubbish, carriages splattered on the muddy drives, and workmen's shanties surrounded it on two sides.

The executive mansion was first painted white after the British occupation during the War of 1812. British soldiers failed in an attempt to burn it down in 1814, but the flames charred the stones and something had to be done.

Each Leaves His Mark
Down to and including the present occupants, each president has left his mark on the White House.

Most recent work was performed under the direction of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. She had workmen tunnel under the front drive and install a completely electrified kitchen and storage space.

History relates that Mrs. John Adams hung her laundry in the now famous East Room before it was decorated.

Dolly Madison created a stir when she installed bathrooms but the rough and ready Andrew Jackson during his tenure ordered them removed, not to be replaced until Millard Fillmore took office.

No Whiskies
The mansion has housed many convivial groups, also many believers in prohibition. Even now, "hard" liquor never is served there at social functions.

The executive offices, separate from the White House proper, but connected, were first built under Theodore Roosevelt.

Calvin Coolidge, for all his economy, built a new roof and enlarged the executive offices. The roof was about ready to fall in.

The offices were further enlarged two years ago and a complete cooling system installed.

First Radio
Calvin Coolidge put in the first radio, while Woodrow Wilson first installed a motion picture projector.

The White House, or President's House, as it then was known, was begun in 1792, when Washington was nothing more than a muddy village. It was first occupied by President Adams in 1800. Following its scorching by the British in 1814, it was rebuilt in 1818.

The executive offices were damaged by fire during the Hoover administration—but the White House itself was untouched then.

MRS. SIMPSON WOULD NOT WED KING, IS REPORT

LONDON, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Mrs. Wallis Simpson, expecting a divorce from Ernest A. Simpson within a few days is firmly opposed to the idea of a marriage with King Edward, close friends said today.

It was insisted that Mrs. Simpson opposed the idea of a marriage under existing conditions both from her own viewpoint and that of the king.

From her own standpoint, friends said, Mrs. Simpson would be too proud to accept any other position, as a king's wife, than that of queen with full recognition—recognition which, on the basis of present talk, it might be impossible or impracticable to accord her.

From the king's position, the friends added, and as a real friend of King Edward, Mrs. Simpson is proud of his position and of the admiration and liking with which he is regarded not only in Great Britain and the empire but in much of the rest of the world. Hence, they insisted, she would be the last person to consent to anything that might cause embarrassment to his position as king.

Mrs. Simpson has dismissed as "foolish" any mention of the possibility that she might marry the king.

ART GROVELING IN U. S. SCORED

ST. LOUIS (UP)—Sheila Burlingame of St. Louis, noted artist, believes that America should discard its "inferiority complex" about American art and encourage artists of this nation to "create new means and forms of expression."

Mrs. Burlingame has prepared to spend the next year, or possibly two, at the Cranbrook Academy of Art, near Detroit, where she will work with Carl Milles noted sculptor.

Mrs. Burlingame believes that a lack of background of tradition for American artists may be of some value in the development of art in this nation in the future.

"It is true that American artists have no tradition to fall back on," she said, "but that can be a help as well as a hindrance. We are free of tradition, free to experiment, to create new means and forms of expression."

She spent the summer in England, working in the shop of one Harold Pound, a smith and tool-maker. She described it as "working under ideal conditions, learning all about the tools and working in all sorts of stone."

An artist herself, and one who has experimented widely with all mediums of art, Mrs. Burlingame has her own opinions on the problems of American art. She says:

"It is time for America to get over an inferiority complex about art. Artists abroad expect it. They don't like to see us groveling at their feet whenever the subject of art comes up. They expect us to be self-respecting to realize that we are creating an American culture."

Urges Independent Course
"They know we have as good artists as they have. They'd feel easier if we'd stop following their lead, quit imitating them."

"We are curious in the way we treat our artists. For the most part, we ignore them as a vital part of our life, but then we spot a few and do incalculable harm by ballyhooing them. Now, I think

Grant Wood is a fine painter; I like his 'American Gothic' very much, but he was over-publicized. We'll have twenty little 'Grant Woods' now instead of a few more strongly individual artists.

"If only we could get over the idea that artists are such strange people, if we could treat them just as we do other workers encouraging them by our interest, but allowing them to develop without expecting them to jump forth, momentarily, as world-shaking geniuses!"

LANDON CLAIMS 'REGIMENTATION' OF LIVES IN U. S.

ABOARD LONDON TRAIN, IN TEXAS, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon swung his presidential campaign through the southwest toward Oklahoma City today with a charge that the New Deal leaders are awaiting a favorable time to regiment "the homes, lives and jobs of everyone of us."

"Regimentation of the individual and curb his liberties underline every one of the New Deal's plans," the Republican nominee asserted in a rear platform speech at Phoenix last night as he headed into the final midwest and eastern phase of his campaign with an offer to "take my stand against all comers" in defense of the American way.

HALLOWEEN VANDALISM
NOW that legislation protects the fingers, eyes and lives of children from the dangerous Fourth of July celebrations of other days, how about some more home made legislation to protect the shrubs, bird baths, screens and automobiles of citizens from the same children during the preceding Halloween?

Time was when Halloween was observed the one evening. Grotesque costumes, pumpkins, corn stalks, cider and doughnuts and false faces characterized parties given for young people most often, and some times for their elders. Occasionally a wagon was pushed to the roof of a shed, tick-tacks were put on windows, ghostly figures wrapped in sheets stalked abroad, and strings tied to cans were stretched across the sidewalks to startle pedestrians.
But look at the children now!
Soap smeared on the finish of automobiles, electric light bulbs stolen from outside lights, garden hose cut or dragged away, bird baths tipped over and broken, milk bottles broken and thrown into the street, lawns trampled, shrubs pulled up—all vandalism of the most exasperating sort in the name of a holiday. And it continues for a week.
Where are their parents?
Obviously the police can not cope with the nuisance—not even one to every block could stop it. It is the parents' duty. They should stop it, or at least see to it that their children confine their so-called fun to their own back yards.

ON BEING YOURSELF
THE difficulty of being yourself will be admitted by any one who has even apologized for his own words or deeds by saying, "I was not myself when that happened." Perhaps this poor substitute for your better self is the creature of worry, or illness, or some intemperance of body or spirit. But even the best of us experience the difficulty of being always at his best.
To be at your best physically is a difficult achievement. The great singer must train his voice hour after hour before his audience can listen to it in comfort. We often remark: How naturally he sings! Yet behind that simple naturalness are years of grinding practice.
How much more difficult then it is to be ourselves in that realm of intangible thing called personality. There seems to be a certain depravity into which we naturally gravitate. We set out nobly to be at our best, and fall far short of that shining goal. We do the thing we should not have done, and leave undone the thing that we should have done.
Yet out of this never ending conflict of the spirit, comes personality, power and influence. It makes us what we are. It is the secret of such tremendous personalities as Lincoln or Roosevelt.
Being one's true self is not easy. But beyond its accomplishments lie the rewards

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—What is communism?
We had a new definition in Washington the other day. Capital have been wanting to extend their one-man car system, abolishing conductors.
Patrons objected. Labor objected especially. It is easy to see why.
Nevertheless the District of Columbia public utilities commission o. k'd the readjustment.
Thereupon the local Central Labor Federation held a meeting to protest against the commission's action and to demand the commissioners' removal from office.
A resolution to that effect was adopted minus one vote. That one vote was not negative. It simply was not cast.
C. J. McLane of the American Federation of Government Employees balked.
"This resolution," he said, "attacks the utility's constitutional right to gouge the people. Therefore it is communist. I can't support communism."
Was he sarcastic?

RUSH FOR BAND-WAGON
WITH THE PRESIDENT'S SPECIAL —
There is no question about the attitude of the crowds that are turning out for Roosevelt. They are not merely curious—as were the crowds that turned out to see Al Smith in 1928 or William Jennings Bryan during the heyday of his oratory.
They are genuine Roosevelt rooters.
Take the crowd that waited for him in the rain in Cleveland. His train was nearly an hour late. But they waited, a great crowd packed along the waterfront, dripping, but patient.
These and other straws in the wind indicate that the ground-swell for Roosevelt is growing. It now looks as if the majority previously predicted for him by The Washington Merry-Go-Round will be considerably greater.
New York, Michigan and that rock-ribbed stronghold of Republicanism, Pennsylvania, give every appearance of increasing their edge in his favor.
Apparently, the band-wagon rush which starts whenever victory looks certain for one candidate is now in progress. People like to be on the winning side.

HEART-FAILURE
Mrs. Roosevelt's penchant for colorful friendships gave the politicians accompanying the President some nerve-racking moments last week.
This particular friend was Miss Mayris Chaney, night club dancer and vaudeville entertainer. She turned up at Lincoln one morning and nearly gave some of the presidential advisers heart failure.
They had gone to great pains to see that none of the President's children be included in his entourage. With son Elliott and daughter Anna involved in recent divorces and son Jimmy charged with patronage finagling in Massachusetts, the campaign master minds thought it best to keep them out of the picture.
Then Miss Chaney came along. She is blonde, alluring and unmistakably theatrical. Well, it was just too much for the boys.
No one paid much attention to her at first, thinking she was some local personage joining the train for a few hours. But when she appeared again the following day, the newsmen began to ask questions—and the story got out.
That was when the politicians had their fainting spells. Kansas, Colorado, Wyoming, Michigan, Ohio and upstate New York, all hot battle grounds, still lay before them. Miss Chaney was discreet and self-effacing—but she couldn't be missed.
The politicians said nothing in "the back car" (the President's traveling residence) but they talked plenty in the press cars. They had nothing against Miss Chaney. She was most charming and refined. But they were sure that so theatrical-looking for a personage would go over well in conservative rural areas.
And they made it clear that they thought Mrs. Roosevelt should restrain her big-hearted hostess impulses during the campaign.
Note—Miss Chaney became acquainted with Mrs. Roosevelt several years ago while playing a vaudeville engagement in Washington. She has been a guest of the First Lady a number of times since.

Water Very Important in Physiology of Body

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
WE REFERRED yesterday to the amount of water in common foodstuffs. This, although a matter of great importance in the physiology of the body, is something that need not concern the practical dietitian under ordinary circumstances.
Water plays a very important part in the physiology of the body, but it is of such great importance that if there is any lack of the requisite amount, the body immediately responds with such suffering that the deficiency has to be made up. In plain terms, that means that thirst is one of the most agonizing of all human emotions and must be satisfied.
It is said that an Italian political prisoner lived 18 days without either food or water, but it would be very difficult to convince anyone who had gone even 24 hours without water that that was possible. It is generally accepted that a man cannot live more than 72 hours without water.
Of course, the body forms water from the oxidation of foodstuff. A hibernating animal takes no fluid during its sleep period of several months, but forms 107 grams of water by the oxidation of 100 grams of fat. Perhaps the Italian political prisoner was fat when they cooped him up.
How Much Water?
An adult of average weight in a temperate climate takes in from one and one-half to three quarts of water daily. Temperature, weather, activity, and other things may change this. In the tropics the average is said to be 13 quarts a day.

Does water at meals do any harm? This question is considerably debated, but few competent physiologists seem to think that it does. Nor is it probable that water drinking with meals is likely to lead to overweight. The water that is drunk in that way probably runs down a sort of trough in the intestines without being mixed with the food at all.
Europeans drink water at the table hardly at all, getting what they need for their use from the wine or beer which they use as a beverage.
The best information we have comes from the painstaking researches of Rehuss and Hawke on digestion, who concluded that water-drinking does not influence the rate or thoroughness of digestion at all.
Water between meals is calculated to help mildly constipated people, and a large amount of water-drinking results in washing out of the body three grams of nitrogen into the urine, a day.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS
Mrs. L. O.: "My 13-year-old daughter is troubled by periodic attacks of pinworm. Can you give some advice for curing this condition?"
Answer: It is usually necessary to treat pinworms by mouth as well as irrigation of the lower bowel, because they lodge in the upper intestine and appendix and are not reached by the irrigation. They are frequently extremely stubborn, and treatment must be carried out repeatedly. Santonin, followed by calomel, is the drug recommended to be taken by mouth, and quassia (one ounce of quassia chips in a pint of water) for rectal irrigation.

HALLOWEEN VANDALISM

NOW that legislation protects the fingers, eyes and lives of children from the dangerous Fourth of July celebrations of other days, how about some more home made legislation to protect the shrubs, bird baths, screens and automobiles of citizens from the same children during the preceding Halloween?

Time was when Halloween was observed the one evening. Grotesque costumes, pumpkins, corn stalks, cider and doughnuts and false faces characterized parties given for young people most often, and some times for their elders. Occasionally a wagon was pushed to the roof of a shed, tick-tacks were put on windows, ghostly figures wrapped in sheets stalked abroad, and strings tied to cans were stretched across the sidewalks to startle pedestrians.

But look at the children now!

Soap smeared on the finish of automobiles, electric light bulbs stolen from outside lights, garden hose cut or dragged away, bird baths tipped over and broken, milk bottles broken and thrown into the street, lawns trampled, shrubs pulled up—all vandalism of the most exasperating sort in the name of a holiday. And it continues for a week.

Where are their parents?

Obviously the police can not cope with the nuisance—not even one to every block could stop it. It is the parents' duty. They should stop it, or at least see to it that their children confine their so-called fun to their own back yards.

ON BEING YOURSELF

THE difficulty of being yourself will be admitted by any one who has even apologized for his own words or deeds by saying, "I was not myself when that happened." Perhaps this poor substitute for your better self is the creature of worry, or illness, or some intemperance of body or spirit. But even the best of us experience the difficulty of being always at his best.

To be at your best physically is a difficult achievement. The great singer must train his voice hour after hour before his audience can listen to it in comfort. We often remark: How naturally he sings! Yet behind that simple naturalness are years of grinding practice.

How much more difficult then it is to be ourselves in that realm of intangible thing called personality. There seems to be a certain depravity into which we naturally gravitate. We set out nobly to be at our best, and fall far short of that shining goal. We do the thing we should not have done, and leave undone the thing that we should have done.

Yet out of this never ending conflict of the spirit, comes personality, power and influence. It makes us what we are. It is the secret of such tremendous personalities as Lincoln or Roosevelt.

Being one's true self is not easy. But beyond its accomplishments lie the rewards

WHAT INDUSTRIES? The United States Chamber of Commerce recently submitted figures indicating that 7,000,000 workers have been re-absorbed into private employment since the depth of the depression.

It sounds pretty fair.

But the chamber cannot give a breakdown, industry by industry, of the increase. I tried to get one and it is not available.

It was suggested that, by applying here and there to the secretaries of scores of different industries' organizations, I might be able to get the desired information and foot their various estimates up. The chamber, however, had not bothered to do so. All it had done was to guess.

How much are these loose guesses worth?

SUPREME COURT EASIER?

When the United States supreme court reconvened the other day a young lawyer, aged 24, and his wife, aged 22, were admitted to practice before the August tribunal. It was quite an event; photographs taken and all that. The rule, come down through American history, is that no lawyer can be admitted without at least four years' previous state court practice.

This husband perhaps had started in on his state court practice at the age of 20, but it is likely that his wife started in at the age of 18?

A FAIR RULE?

Incidentally, under present regulations, a husband and wife may not hold two different positions under the federal government.

The idea is to spread out jobs among families.

Now, these two young folk hold jobs—respectively in the housing administration (the husband) and the securities administration (the wife).

Many of these exceptions are made.

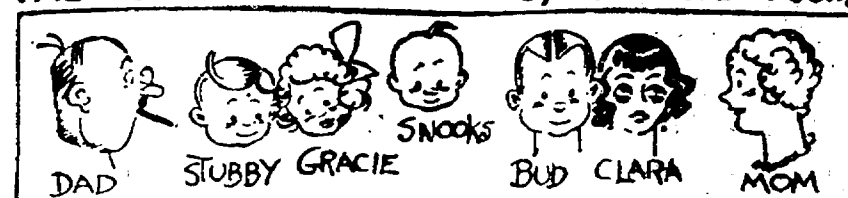

They cause a vast deal of ill feeling.

Personally, I do not think it is a very fair rule. Still, if it is to be applied, it ought to be applied uniformly.

It isn't. It is applied politically.

FLOWERS AT HER FEET

By MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 27

ALIX thought fresh chrysanthemums to fill her copper bowls so that her place would be bright and cheerful for Bill Boyd when he arrived. And discovered that they showed up the faded colors in her curtains.

She hadn't looked at her place for so long that she didn't realize that she had let it run down. A home was like a person, it needed interest and a heart to make it warm.

The chintz cover on the big chair was worn, untidy. A cigarette burn had made a hole on the arm. The lamp shades were old and dusty. There was a film of dust on everything above her head. It was the home of a girl who had no interest in it.

She took an afternoon off and went shopping for fresh curtains, new lamp shades and a bright chintz for a pull chair cover.

Passing a long mirror she saw herself and was shocked that this dowdy dressed girl was Alix. Her hat, her frock, even her shoes looked worn and of last year's vintage.

There were two big boxes under her arm when she got home. A box with a new autumn suit and a soft collar of silver fox. Expensive, but it did her heart good. In the other box there was a mad little hat with a feather over one eye and a coque feather sitting on its top in a manner as dashing as the hat of an Italian cavalry officer.

She tried them both on, fluffing her hair out on cheeks that showed hollows; rubbed a rouge pad over her cheek bones and summoned a smile from heaven knew where.

Bill Boyd was coming and she needed Bill Boyd.

It was a year since she'd seen to her face. A year that had added five to her face.

His bright, homely smile faded when he saw her. What had that year done to Alix?

He was her friend and he wanted to know.

"What do you mean, Bill?" "You're different. You're older. I don't know. I merely feel that you are a different girl."

"(Oh, very different, Alix.) She didn't say I'm not very complimentary, eh?"

"No, you're not," she said and smiled that mirthless, gentle smile. The only one she had.

Bill knew she wouldn't tell him then.

"I guess it's just New York. New York always does things to one. We live so differently here, rushing to work to parties. Keeping a jump ahead of the girl who wants your job. Kept to the cadence of the city. Living under a tension." Why did she babble on so? Why didn't she talk naturally? Because there wasn't anything to say. Because she wasn't interested in anything.

And because she didn't want to talk, she had him take her to the theater.

She bought a new evening dress and got no pleasure from its warm coral color. She danced to toneless music.

They tried Chinatown, ate in Italian, French and German restaurants. They went to a festa down in Mulberry street and to see the Finnish dances on the mall in Central park.

It wasn't fun for her but she did her best for Bill. It was, at least, a week when she fell into bed and right into sleep. And she wasn't lonely that week. Also, there was a stirring within her, a feeling of abiding affection for Bill and gratitude for his wide, lighted grin, his sturdy shoulder beside her own.

She liked his hearty laugh and the strange embarrassment he couldn't hide when some of her unhappiness came out on her face.

Then, she gave him back a rueful smile and was pleased to see how easily she had dispelled his concern.

Alix was not meant for independence. She needed attention, asked in it. Bill gave it to her. He made her feel that he was her corner to a tea room for supper. He declared that her light wrap wasn't warm enough when they rode on top of a Fifth avenue bus.

No girl could get fat and healthy eating eternal vegetable salads, he said sternly at lunch, and sat over her while she ate a lamb chop.

She wished that he didn't have to go back to Bardsdale—he stayed an extra week—because then she would be alone again.

The last night of his stay, she insisted that they have dinner at her house.

Bill was glad enough to. The first time he had seen her in New York, she had offered to give him dinner at her apartment. He had said he couldn't see her in a domestic role; she was his "romantic lady."

His romantic lady had worn him out this time. He was beginning to see why she was white and drawn. It was New York. Bill began to have a defensive complex.

"New York's a great place if you like it," he said while they sat before the hearty fare he had built. "So few people really do." Alix said noncommittally and lifted the cover of the coffee urn to see if it was ready. It was. "You oughtn't to have sugar, Bill, I'll give you one." She stirred the sugar in his cup and handed it to him. She looked very pretty in her velvet house gown sitting at a coffee table before her own hearth.

It was a domestic scene. "Maybe I had you all wrong, Alix. Maybe you are a small town girl after all."

"Tell me," she said, sipping her coffee, "about Bardsdale. I want to know about it."

"Bill bit off the end of his cigar. 'You wouldn't know it, Alix. We're a big town now. We've got a chamber of commerce, a country club, a block of what you girls call 'smart shops'. The girls who used to belong to the Ladies Aid are country club bridge and golf players."

"Tell me hurriedly but there's always something going on. We have lectures and concerts and a few plays come out from New York."

"Oh, culture!" She looked at him from under her brows.

"You bet! Say, we've even got an interior decoration shop. That's your line. If you ever want a job in Bardsdale, let me know."

"Thank you, Bill. I will—if I ever."

Bill didn't tell her that it was his money that financed most of those "smart shops".

"And the people I used to know, and the library with the big tree that kept out the light from my favorite corner, are they still there?"

"The trees are there, Alix. Bigger and shadier but a good many of the people are gone. Remember Frank Turner?"

"Oh, yes, Alix remembered Frank Turner. When she was only 17, the action of the mill-owning Turners had said he'd leave college if she'd marry him."

"Turner's in the Chicago office. Married a girl from Atlanta. They separated a couple of times."

"Oh, Bill, don't tell me people who lead nice, sensible lives have domestic troubles."

"People who don't know what they want, always have troubles of one kind or another," Bill said sagely.

Alix wanted Bardsdale. Bill Boyd had awakened memories in her of peace in its quiet, tree-lined avenues. There, she would be away from scenes that would forever remind her with fresh pain of things she had put from her.

Bill had said, half jokingly, "If you ever want a job in Bardsdale, let me know."

Mr. Gardner contrasted the older family type farm with the present, more highly specialized type of farming. Farms and even entire districts are devoted exclusively to a specialized crop, wheat, cotton, citrus fruits, tobacco, etc.

"This condition," Mr. Gardner said, "arose before and during the World War due to an abnormal world demand which no longer exists. Economists feel that the cure for the present agricultural uncertainty rests with a wider development of the small family type farm, which is established and maintained with the idea of a permanent home, where most of the things that can be produced practically are grown on the small farm."

"Experiments are necessary for progress in all lines, equally so in agriculture, but governments must be connected with reality. Individual responsibility must not be allowed to give way to government responsibility. Good business men claim an individual or a nation is not extravagant so long as it never spends more than it has, and gets its money's worth," he concluded.

Jean Graham, of state headquarters, a representative of the Ohio League of Young Republican Clubs, presented the ideas of the young voters. She said in part: "To youth belongs the future, and it is not patient. They want work, want to marry and establish homes, they are resentful of the

JACOBS THWARTED IN EFFORT TO FIT OPPONENT FOR JOE LOUIS

NEWCOMER FROM CHILE IN DRAW WITH BIG NEGRO

Arturo Godoy in First Fight Fails to Show Expected Form

GOOD "HEAVIES" FEW 3,500 in Crowd Watch Interesting Match

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Finding an opponent to withstand the fire of Joe Louis' fists is becoming a tough job. Promoter Mike Jacobs learned today. His latest importation, Arturo Godoy, of Chile, was held to a draw by Leroy Haynes, Philadelphia negro, last night.

Haynes was attempting a comeback after three licks by Al Etore, when he squared off in Jacobs' red-plush hippodrome against Godoy.

The Chilean, who knocked out Louis Angel Firpo, looked like a killer in the early rounds by swarming all over Haynes, but he lacked the dynamite to put him away. The Philadelphia put on a last round whirlwind finish that earned him a draw.

Godoy was cut badly and appeared to be in worse condition than Haynes at the end. The negro smashed Arturo's bloody face in the 10th until the South American was groggy. It appeared that if there had been another round, Haynes would have finished him.

While Godoy's showing was not bad for a newcomer to the American ring, it was disappointing, particularly to Jacobs who had hoped to build him up for Louis.

If Godoy was a disappointment to Promoter Jacobs, the gate was more so. The 3,501 paid attendance grossed $7,641.

Godoy weighed 199½; Haynes 197½.

SCHMIDT DRILLS TWO GUARDS FOR HARD BLOCKING

COLUMBUS, Oct. 22.—(UP)—In an effort to make the running attack of his Ohio State team click Coach Francis A. Schmidt today turned his attention to the improvement of the play of his guards in preparation for the Indiana game here Saturday.

With two veterans, Inwood Smith and Gus Zarnas, on hand as his regular guards, Schmidt did not anticipate any trouble at the positions. However, the play of the pair has been below the standard they set a year ago.

The chief defect offensively has been their inability to pull out of the line fast enough to afford adequate blocking for the light ball carriers.

In the first two contests of the season with New York U. and Pittsburgh, the defensive play of Smith and Zarnas was up to par. Last week against Northwestern both slumped and were fooled repeatedly by the Wildcat backs, particularly on spinner plays.

Sol Maggied, the Columbus boy who played brilliantly after he replaced Smith, has continued to be impressive in practice this week and likely will see considerable service during the remainder of the campaign.

After working "Jumpin' Joe" Williams at the quarterback post early in the week and permitting Jim McDonald to call signals from full back, Schmidt yesterday returned diminutive Tippy Dye to the varsity in place of Williams.

Trojan Football Stock Rises Again

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Troy's razed football towers are being rebuilt. Gridiron enemies who, during the last few years left not a stone upon a stone in their assaults upon Southern California's football temple, are discovering the Trojans are tough again.

Coach Howard Jones hasn't quite restored the football structure to what it was three or four years ago, but a grand start has been made. You'll know more about this when you read the scores of the U. S. C.-Stanford game Oct. 24, and the U. S. C.-Washington tussle two weeks later.

Jones Has His Man Led by Dave Davis, a quarterback of the Warburton type, the Trojans easily defeated their first two Pacific conference rivals, Oregon and Oregon State, and came east to administer a sound football lesson to University of Illinois,

He's the Captain

JIM GAFFNEY, Harvard

A VERSATILE lineman who has played end, guard and tackle, is James J. Gaffney, Jr., captain of the Harvard university football team.

Jim is a son of James J. Gaffney, a graduate of Harvard back in 1908. Jim, Jr. will be graduated from Harvard next June.

Twenty years old, six feet tall and weighing 198 pounds, Jim prepared for Harvard at Danvers, Mass., high school, where he played football and baseball and was on the track team.

On the freshman football team at Harvard, Jim played an end. He won his numerals. While still a freshman, the captain-to-be was also on the boxing and track squads.

Two years ago, Jim, as a sophomore, played end and won a minor letter. He shifted to guard last year and came through as a regular.

In spring football practice, Gaffney was put in at tackle. Harvard needed a good man for that position and none could be found among the candidates. Since, however, several of the boys have shown up well at tackle and Jim is back at guard.

About This And That In Many Sports

From Just 'Round

If you wish to make a Circleville high school football player angry just tell him the Marysville game was called off because school officials were afraid the Union counties would be too tough—That is wrong entirely, though, because the boys had been talking Marysville for two weeks—They like to beat Jerry Kingsmore and his crew * * * The Xenia East-Circleville football game next Tuesday afternoon will be a regulation ball game with freshmen and sophomores getting a real chance to show what they have—The admission will be TEN CENTS to all persons—Xenia East is a colored school * * * Very few football guessers will name Ohio State over Indiana after comparing the Bucks' defeats at the hands of Pittsburgh and Northwestern * * * There is a lot of local argument over who should be favored in the Notre Dame-Pitt at Pittsburgh—The fact that the Irish have been going well while the Sutherlandmen lose to Duquesne has boosted South Ben stock—We like the Panthers, regardless * * *

Cage Teams Busy

County cage teams have been in action several weeks, and several teams have been showing to good advantage—Over at New Holland, Coach Beanie Warner is on the hot spot with newspaper and fans expecting a winner again even though Ev Landman, Chuck Ater and Herb Dennis are gone—Ashville will be tough again the lineup to include Wimpy Walden, now a sophomore and six feet two inches in the ozone at center, Walter Gregg and his freshman brother, Junior, at the forwards, and Hoover and Mallory or a couple other guys named Joe at the guards—The offensive posts seem set with the Greggs and Walden presiding * * *

Schmidt's Move Okeh

Coach Francis Schmidt's move of sending Dye and Wasyluk off the first string may be a good way in which to get more weight and power into the backfield—Jim McDonald is the outstanding man in the backfield without any doubt—Kabealo is a good kicker, and that's about all—Bettridge is fast and a hard driver, while Williams seemed to have found himself, at least so far as running is concerned, against the Wildcats—It would seem, despite the little publicity he received on the team, that Ohio needs another Stanley Pincura * * *

BELL MAY START

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 22.—(UP)—Developments in the Minnesota camp pointed toward Frank Bell's starting for Bob Weid at left guard against Purdue Saturday. Bell, negro sophomore, has developed speed which Coach Bernie Bierman said he would give the Boiler-makers in big doses.

PURDUE HAS INJURIES

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 22.—(UP)—The injured list remained the big problem at Purdue. The end assignment vacated by Bill Vergane because of injuries probably will go to Dick Stephenson, sophomore, since George Spehn, reserve, suffered a leg injury yesterday. Fred Stalcup, left half, still had trouble with his ankle, but John Drake, right half, apparently will be able to start against Minnesota.

Both declarer and North held equal numbers of trumps, but declarer's spades were established, enabling West to obtain the jump on subsequent forcing tactics.

At the eighth trick the J of spades was led. That ruined North's hopes of defeating the contract. If he did not trump, dummy would discard. If North trumped low, dummy would over-trump. He trumped with the Q. Dummy discarded. As it turned out the third and last defensive trick had been taken. There was nothing to be done about it. Declarer had played too well. North led his Q of clubs. Dummy's Ace took the trick. The J of hearts picked up one of North's trumps. Declarer used his last low trump to ruff a club. The Ace of hearts picked up North's last trump, leaving the 8 of spades to win the tenth trick for the declaring side.

COUNCIL DEBATES REJECTION OF SPOUTING BID, ADJOURNS FOR SHOW

LIVE DEMANDS TO LEARN WHY PRICE TOO HIGH

Officials Decide to Wait Until April to Begin Work at Hall

SEYFERT SEWER OKED

Merry-go-round, Shooting Gallery Assist Solons

With the merry-go-round grinding out carnival tunes on one side of the city building and a rifle range in full blast on the other, councilmen held their regular meeting Wednesday night. They discussed spouting for Memorial Hall and passed an ordinance establishing voting places for the November election. They managed to complete their work as the Miss Pumpkin Show pageant was passing the city building and adjourned to meet again next Wednesday evening.

A. J. Lyle, local contractor, appeared before council to ask on what grounds his bid had been rejected for installing new spouting on the Memorial Hall. Mr. Lyle's bid was the only one submitted to the Board of Control and was rejected on the contention it was too high. He explained to councilmen the job required scaffolding and since no estimate was given on the work he could not understand how the bid could be considered high or low.

Three Air Views

Councilmen discussed the spouting proposition from all angles. Councilman Harry Steinhilber believed the bid was fair and the contract should be awarded to a citizen of Circleville. Councilman C. O. Leist suggested the work should be delayed until spring as some pointing was needed on the building. Frank Marion said the delay would probably cause more damage to the building than the amount of increase on the bid as the worn-out spouting sent water down the side of the building. He contended if the board did not expect to let the bid they should not have opened it.

Councilman Ben Gordon informed members the advertising on the bid stated any or all bids could be rejected. He doubted if the city had sufficient funds at the present time to award the contract due to the numerous WPA projects now in operation.

Councilman Tull Barnes suggested the work be delayed until next spring and members adjourned to discuss the proposition.

The finally decided to instruct members of the Board of Control and no further advertising should be done on the project. Mr. Lyle's bid was considered rejected.

Sewer Approved
Plans for a sanitary sewer in an alley in Seyfert addition were approved by council. The 8-inch sewer will extend 300 feet and will be installed by WPA workers.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

Thin Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.
Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.
An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches, any distress.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
